D. Commentary

The 5pm ministerial briefing was given by Oliver Dowden, the Digital, Culture, Media and Sport Secretary, who explained that the government was working closely with the sports sector to get community and grassroots sport up and running as soon as it is safe to do so and with a target date at the start of July 2020 – at the earliest.

He announced that the English Premier League Football was restarting later in the day, after a 100-day pause, with two evening matches taking place behind closed doors. All remaining Premier League games this season will be shown live on television, with one third on free-to-air.
